Growing Up with Patricia Hayes

By Kimberly Hayes Curcio

Many of you may not be familiar with my life in my early days growing up. But my childhood was a unique experience that I thought I would share with you. My mother met my father when she was fourteen years old. He was twenty one. They fell in love and when she turned fifteen, they drove across the state, lied about her age and they were married. By the end of her twenty-third year my mom Patricia had given birth to five children. I mean really, what was she thinking? I of course decided that I would be the first courageous lassie to be born into this pack. One year and four months later, my sister Kelly was born. Following pretty much the same time sequence, my three beautiful brothers, Christopher, Sterling, and Mitchell arrived. The five of us were all born within a seven year period. Mitchell was the youngest.

Back when Kelly and I had our Mom all to ourselves

Mitchell was also the most balanced. He was an unusually kind and sensitive baby. Not that the rest of us weren't sensitive too, but we were definitely more rowdy and dramatic. I can attest to this fact, and also to the reason why. It was because of my mom. When Mitchell was in her womb, Patricia had recently begun exploring her spiritual self. She began to search as her hunger for spiritual experiences grew, educating herself spiritually and practicing self-discipline. Both she and my father got involved with Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship. Patricia developed meditation groups, healing workshops, psychic development classes, and held Yoga sessions in our home. From that time forward her search for greater meaning and her desire to fulfill a greater purpose became a permanent part of her own heartbeat in life.

Me, Kelly, Chris, Sterling, Mitchell

Despite having five little children to care for, somehow she found the time to teach me about meditation and how to do it. She also began to express the importance of keeping my inner senses awake and alive. Even then I could feel how keenly aware she was of non-physical energy. She shared with me how important it was for me to trust my inner senses, my inner world, and always my heart. Meditation was one method I found that would enable me to find my own balance in the world. She stressed to me many times that there wasn't any greater achievement in life than to fulfill myself spiritually. "Love God", she said, "with all your heart".

Growing up with four other siblings wasn't an easy test to master. But somehow each of us survived, and still to this day we remain very close. There isn't anything that we wouldn't do for each other. We grew up differently than most families. And as unique as our experience was, that does not take away from all the trials and tests we learned from either. Those hard experiences gave us all the back-bone to stand tall in our choices, even if they were wrong, and to rise above it all and to forgive. I think this is one of the things I love the most about growing up in my family, the unconditional love we learned as children. My mom did private sessions with us every day, getting to know us more intimately, learning about and helping us to express our spiritual gifts and abilities. She did psychic experiments with us and often used spiritual psychotherapy on us. I never really cared which games she chose to play. I just knew it was "mommy-time", and I had her all to myself. Patricia was fascinated doing the sessions too. It wasn't just a job for her. You could feel her intrigue, openness, and acceptance. We were all so very different and we expressed differently. I feel it was through all of that she learned about our gifts, our strengths, and was able to energize them in each of us.

Sterling, Me, Chris, Kelly, Mitchell

The games our family played together were different than what most normal families would do. One game that made us laugh a lot was this one: One of us would stand in the center of the room blindfolded, and the rest of us would vote secretly which corner to send them. Then, with our energy and intention we would make them go to the corner we had chosen. I know this sounds corny, but it was a lot of fun, always worked, and it showed us the power of our energy and how to use it.

As time went by my mother's search continued to deepen. By the time I was eleven, my mom would take me out of school to attend the Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship Conferences. My parents became deeply involved with this group of spiritual seekers, and soon after were appointed to the board of directors. Of course I would whine all the way there about missing school, but after arriving I always felt that I had always belonged. I met so many gifted mediums and spiritual teachers. Back then there were so many wonderful and loving people, innovative thinkers who were pioneering concepts like psychic abilities, spirituality, energy healing, and life after death. In many ways these concepts were being demonstrated and their reality being proved.

In 1968, at ten years of age, I met Arthur Ford. He moved to South Florida and shared a home with my grandmother. He was like a grandpa to all of us kids. I got to meet so many interesting people in their home like Marcus Bach. He was a beautiful writer on whom I had a crush for some time. I met Edgar Mitchell the astronaut, and so many others. Patricia was Arthur's secretary. It was through all the lectures, conferences, and trance readings where I really got to know Arthur and experience his unbelievable gifts. I saw the people he touched and his effects on them. He was one of the purest channels I have ever felt and witnessed. Patricia was by his side the night he died.

Although Spirituality has existed throughout time, back in the late sixties and seventies modern man thought that in order to be psychic a person had to be gifted. Psychic abilities were often thought of as a hoax, and something that had to be proven. The reality is this. We are spiritual beings in human form living upon the earth. The earth gives us time to learn and evolve, through the choices we make and through our very existence. And in the end it doesn't end. Our consciousness continues, developing our abilities in higher ways, leading us to our next stage of experience and evolution.

At fourteen years old, I became somewhat of a rebel. As clear as day I can remember telling my mom that I would be different when I grew up. I told her that more than once. She would always look at me with her telepathic eyes and knowingly say, "But my love, you are already very different". There were also times when she would tell me that I would have karma and have a daughter just like me. I always retorted the same and said, "No mom, that's your karma. I will have two sons come through me and they will not be my karma." Personally I think we're all members of a Motley Crew.

Healing Circle in our home 1969

We conducted group meetings in our home 3 to 4 nights per week with 30 to 40 people.

Each night the people there would send healing energy for all the kids to go to sleep peacefully. I of course rebelled, and would hide my shy self behind the curtains, watching them all play their “psychic games”. That’s what I called them then. I was curious, an inquisitive child who was always intrigued. I was moved so many times by the outcome of their experiences, and there were also times when I didn’t understand. I was young and innocent in the sense that I didn’t see the big deal in all this. I thought everyone was psychic, and had these talents. They just had to trust. To me these abilities were as natural as day.

From the time I was a little girl, I noticed that my mom wrote down everything. She wrote down her meditations and applied the messages to her daily life. She wrote all of the sessions I had with her, as well as the ones she had with my sister and brothers.

She wrote poems, she wrote her inspirations and all of her experiences. She wrote her feelings, positive and negative, and she loved to channel and write what came through. You can’t imagine the many, many boxes of writings I have acquired from her over the years, even more so this last year. As I slowly go through them, I notice the different years over which they were written, and I marvel at the brilliance, the knowledge, the wisdom, and the feeling of truth in all of them.

Like I shared before, I grew up differently. I developed my spiritual self years before I had developed my ego self (didn’t have much confidence there). By the time I was seventeen years old, I was giving psychic readings at the Arthur Ford Academy. It was easy work and I seemed to always attract the people. I am sure it was because I was Patricia’s daughter. Being a Hayes did help. I never cared about being wrong, so I was able to give freely and channel purely. Back in those days it was different than it is today. Many people didn’t take the information to heart and apply it to their lives. But they always came back to hear more, although I didn’t feel like I was making a real difference in their lives. Maybe I was too young to understand that adults need time, lots of time to grow spiritually.

It wasn’t until I was twenty three years old that I began searching for who I, Kimberly, was. I already knew I was Patricia’s daughter and in many ways quite similar. I also knew I had a strong family. But, you know that age old question each of us has asked at some point or another: “Who am I?” Well, that was my time. I guess it was an opportunity in Calgary, Canada that inspired me to leave everything and move across the world to find myself. I acted exactly like I knew what I was doing, but really didn’t. I put all my life’s experiences into my work and developed spiritual and psychotherapy classes for young people. Their ages were anywhere from nine to seventeen. I worked with kids whose parents lived in the real world, with real issues, and who had no spiritual background. I became known and began teaching throughout Canada. It was rewarding and I loved the passion I felt working with all of them. It was there I developed confidence in my ego self. And, that made me feel good about me.

This past year I have cried a lot and I have laughed a lot. I have loved reading all of Patricia’s wonderful writings. Her profound understanding and depth of spirit and life itself moved me, even when I was too young to fully understand her mission. She is now moving towards the fulfillment of her mission on earth. Perhaps this is why I have had such an emotional year. It’s not always easy to let go. It doesn’t matter how much you know. Humans still have to go through a process, and that process requires time. Thank you Mother Earth for that. We get a chance to adjust and to make changes. Nobody likes change, yet it is a constant in our world.

My Father Harry and I

I have been fortunate to have good men in my life, which I have known and loved. I lost my father Harry Hayes on March 5, 2002. I was by his side when he left, and I watched him go. He had waited for me so we could say goodbye. I felt blessed he bestowed that gift to me.

I am also grateful to have had a stepfather who loved me as if I was his own. I am grateful for all the spiritual experiences I've had with my mom and with Marshall whom I have called Papa for thirty-five years. Marshall crossed over in January of 2018.

Marshall and Patricia

My father Harry gave me structure and family values, while my mother and Papa gave me spiritual freedom and expression. I was so blessed to have these influences in my life.

I met my Charlie in 1996

I watched my late husband, Mauricio Panisset, transition on August 1, 1993. He was a wonderful father to my children, and his spirit lives on through me. When Mauricio crossed that day in August I lost the love of my life.

I thought then that we only experience that kind of great love once. How little did I know? I met my husband Charles in August of 1996. We were married in August of 1998. To this day he is my love and my friend, my rock, my Delphi partner, and my forever in this life.

I share this little bit of history with you, mostly because I wanted to share my mother's writings and wisdom back when I was a young girl. Everything that applied then still applies now. It goes to show you that in our Divine Eye all great minds think alike. All of thought flows through union and oneness. Each and every person can tap into the creativity, the knowledge, and the love of God, for we are all universal. It is our inspired thoughts and desires that lead us.

Me and My Mommy

If you have children now or have one on the way, please know that one of the most important things you can share with your child is the energization of their spiritual essence, core, and memory. You are a spiritual guide who can teach them many things, and can learn so much from them. I know you can make an incredible difference in their lives and in whom they're going to be. I also know that your children are beautiful souls and are here to share their gifts with the world, whatever those gifts may be. See them through your spiritual eyes. Your love and sensitivity will go a long way in helping them to learn and to grow. That's what my mom and dad and my Papa Marshall did for me. They saw me through their spiritual eyes, they saw my potential, and their love made a difference. It made a difference between who I am, or who I might have been. In my younger years, I never realized how much depth my mom had. But then again, how often does a child see their parents fully in all their beauty, wisdom, and love, as well as in their humanness?

Consciousness Creates

Patricia's Early Experience A Revelation to Contemplate

By Patricia Hayes

A revelation is no less or no more than a momentary entrance into being, an internalization of a truth that is a part of your reality from that moment forward.

To intellectually realize or to intuitively recognize a truth is a far lesser experience than to internalize a truth. There are so many ideas or concepts that I intellectually realize such as... If I walk in front of a car, I could be killed . . . or if I touch fire, my hands will be burned. There are more precious truths that I intuitively recognize such as the words of wisdom from some of the wise men of the ages . . . Emerson, Swedenborg, Jesus, Krishna and Buddha. There are also many controversial truths that I intuitively recognize such as Philosophy of Yoga and Science of the Mind, but these intellectual realizations and recognized intuitions which were so important in my earlier life, I find now are nothing but reflections of collective intellectual consciousness to which I had chosen to focus my attention. To internalize a truth is to be a part of that truth, to exist within the workings of that truth.

What I have said up to this point is abstract and can intellectually and intuitively be understood. But in the pages to come I wish to communicate my internalization of a truth that has turned me upside down, then sent me in an extraordinary new direction.

I was lying on the rug in our living room listening to music. My good friend lay next to me facing in my direction. Our faces were six inches apart. My eyes, in that position, came to rest on a large painting that covers a good portion of one wall. This painting, one of my own creations, has always been a favorite of mine. In the center of the painting is a wide-eyed boy crouched down, pleading with those wide eyes for love and assurance. Surrounding him on all sides is a menagerie of faces including a woman reaching out in fear, the head of violence, a young man with sex in his eyes. Also present was a wisp of beauty, the eyes of wisdom, and the soft touch of joy. In the upper corner of the painting is a camouflaged figure of a woman and child, which represented to me the wisdom of the ages at the moment of the creation. My eyes focused inadvertently on the upper corner of the painting. With the lighting in the room and the obscurity of detail in the mother and child, I knew I could see many faces within this one figure, and I did. I saw the face of an elderly man with strong features that intermingled with each other, depicting the many aspects of personality. And then I saw something that startled me, the face of a man with such visible strength, love, wisdom and perfection that I said to myself, "If I had to paint God, that is exactly how I would paint Him". And then the revelation began and persisted through the night, the next day, and will continue to persist for eternity."

At that instant, I had created and projected my visual image of God onto the painting. I knew that, because of the lighting, the picture in the upper left-hand corner would change. Therefore, it did change because I was changing it. Any image I wanted to project onto that picture, I saw. I lay there clicking like a camera shutter. At that moment the rhythm flowed through me and I felt as if I had been born anew. My mind was a camera and my physical reality was the screen that reflected my projections.

My eyes quickly focused on the small boy in the center. I had great difficulty in creating changes with him for I knew him to represent a pathetic type appearance. I practiced as I lay there. "I know there is nothing physical about the painting . . . what I choose to project will appear", I said. And as I said that, I felt my doubt. Therefore the image remained as pathetic as before. The internalization continued.

Each individual has his or her own screen. There are no two screens alike, for each is an individual creation. For the most part we project physical manifestations because through intuitive consciousness we know the physical to exist. Sometimes, those of us that know there is a psychic reality view this creation on our screens. KNOWING is what projects what we call physical reality on our screen. We view our physical creations through our physical eyes, or psychic eyes depending on what we're viewing. At that moment I completely knew that the painting that I was looking at was a creation that I knew to be there. I also knew I could replace it in an instant. I knew there was a boat. The painting itself became a boat. I knew the painting was a massive tree . . . and it was.

The power of positive thinking, the childhood fable of the 'The Little Choo-Choo That Knew It Could', and the words of Jesus, "Be still and Know that I am God", all flowed through my consciousness at that moment. The philosophy of Yoga and its emphasis on this world as an illusion stood out like a marker in my mind. The physical world was not real at all, only an illusion, only a screen on which we view creations according to our degree of knowing.

Memories of moments in my life fled by, moments when I knew something without a shadow of a doubt. I watched them happen in my life. I saw how they had been painted on my screen through my knowing. I have always known that I never need worry about money. I would always have enough. And I saw my creation. That is exactly what had always happened.

There have been times when money seemed to come out of the ethers to provide the solution to a need. I have always known that I would marry young and have many children. I created it and it was projected into my physical world. I have always known that I was pretty, and I have projected and created a physical image of beauty. I won a beauty contest and was crowned, Miss Vero Beach, Florida when I was nineteen years old.

Remember there is no form . . . only what you project on your individual screen. How one could recognize my appearance is from telepathically sensing my projected knowledge of beauty and because of this, they would view it on their own screens. However, at the very same time, an individual can know that they are not pretty or handsome and the image that she or he views on his screen is far different than the image I am viewing of myself on my screen. Beauty is in the eyes of the beholder. In this case, most of those gathered around me attuned to my vision.

We are constantly being influenced in our knowing and this has a great deal to do with what we view on our screens. Our degree of knowing determines what we are able to project on our screens. Criticism is a most devastating force that produces doubt and takes away from an individual's sense of knowing. Encouragement reinforces a state of knowing and is the most creative process.

The most difficult concept to grasp is that there is no real form. We are all influenced through telepathic energies. The stronger the knowing in a person, the more that person influences other people. I could go on forever about what was internalized in my consciousness in each given moment. Areas of psychology, specific problems such as schizophrenia and paranoia, the concept of psychic manifestation, such as telekinesis and spirit communication, were clear as I watched them unfold within this truth.

"Oh God", I thought, "Will I remember all of this when the experience is over." Just as quickly as I thought that, I knowingly erased the thought and stated, "I know I will remember." I also said, "I will receive more insight into the secret of man's nature and of the universe and I will write about it".

My friend then said, "I don't think I can see the faces change like you can." I answered her spontaneously and said, "And that's why you can't. It's not a knowing on your screen that you can. Think of something that you really knew without a shadow of a doubt. It happened, didn't it?" "Yes", she answered after thinking for some time. "Now think of those things that you were pretty sure might happen. You saw some degree of them in your life but not the whole thing, right?" I asked. She thought for some time and finally answered, "Yes, that's true." I told her to trust in what I was saying. There was an empty bowl that once had contained popcorn that we had eaten that was positioned between us. "You know that I'm excited about what I have understood, don't you?" I asked. "Yes, she answered, I can feel that." Then I surprised her.

"I know without a shadow of a doubt that you can look at that empty bowl on the floor and see whatever you choose to project." I challenged, "Look at the bowl and know that it is not form. It is not real. It is energy. Know we can create whatever we want. Know it isn't there." My friend was quiet for some time, and then got very excited. She said, "I can see the floor through the bowl. I can see through it. The bowl has disappeared! I can't believe it has disappeared!" We were both in an exhilarated state!

By understanding how it works, you know that your mind is like a camera. Your physical eyes see what you have created. If each person knew that beauty, love and creativity surrounded him or her, they would view it on their own screens. The collective consciousness, telepathically communicated, would influence the individuals less able to sense this knowing, and all physical reality would appear on our screens as more harmonious, beautiful, and whole. This is, was, and ever will be an experience that I'll never forget! There are no accidents. The next day, I was on such a high, I saw my entire world through new eyes.

It was no coincidence I'm sure, that within the week I was invited to give a lecture and workshop at The Executive Females Conference in New York City. I already had my lecture and workshop planned. All presenters at such events are evaluated. I received a standing ovation as well as excellent reviews. As a result, I also received many more invitations to speak on the same subject. Soon after this experience, I developed a workshop called Psycho-Knowetics that I planned on teaching at The Arthur Ford Academy.

The University of Hard Knocks

"My Mother Patricia always told me that Mother Earth is the University of Hard Knocks that prepares us for great things! There is one more writing I would like to share, one that is very intimate. Patricia wrote this when I was 18 years old."

Submitted by Kimberly Curcio

I was married at 15, and had five children before I was 24! Believe me; I had to grow up fast. After 21 years of learning, we finally divorced, and I was on my own for the first time. I remember it so well. I travelled by myself to Sanibel Island, outside of Naples, Florida. I had never been alone before so it seemed the thing to do.

The sun and sand hopefully would warm my heart. However, it wasn't the sun or the sand but a message from my spiritual friends that made a difference in my life forever. I had taken my writing pad with me, hoping for counsel from my spiritual friends. This is the message I received that influenced my life forever:

The truth of being lies in each and every soul. We only have to know how to call upon ourselves to be given the answers we seek. We hold all knowledge within, needing only temporary influence from others. Let this not blind you to virtue found in other souls, but know that what lies in that person is the answer for them and not what you yearn for yourself.

Approach new things with the innocence of a child, discovering the many new facets of life. And like the child growing in his surrounding world, be open and aware to the incoming feelings knowing they are not separate from you, but part of the whole you are.

Be gentle to those who you don't understand for they may not understand either. Nor, do not turn away in fear of something unknown to you, yet give it a chance to become familiar, giving you an opportunity for decision.

Know the strength that lies within your soul is ready to aid you at any time, for any need. Just take the time to get in touch and all the answers you seek will appear before you as if no question ever existed. You are love, you are truth, and you are one with God."

From Patricia today:

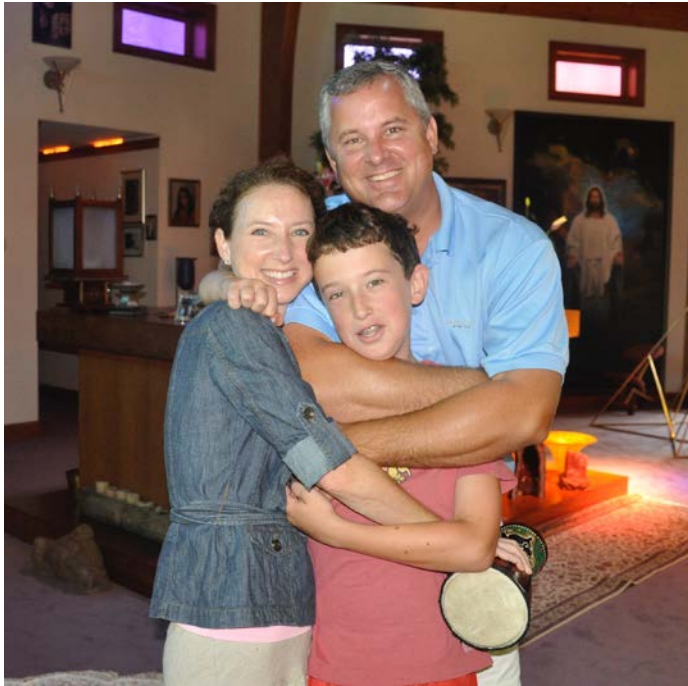

My purpose and message in sharing this event is to tell you that back then the divorce that I thought was the most horrible thing in my life turned out to be my greatest opportunity.

THE MAGIC OF PURPLE

By Neysa Griffith

Imagine a purple paradise, where reality is twice as nice. Your wildest dreams are the key which unlock the gates to destiny.

Taking you through a mysterious door, beyond the purple pebbled shore, to an enchanted forest across the seas where wisdom whispers through ancient trees.

A deep and secret crystal cavern becomes a fortune-teller's tavern. She has answers to all you can ask about the present, future and past.

As the dust and sparkles clear, a splendid vision does appear. An elegant orchid tall and grand welcomes you to Magic Land.

With good cheer and shouts of hooray, pretty pansies dance and play. Polite petunias tap their toes, as a proper primrose powders her nose. Prancing purple ponies lead the pixie parade, having a ball at the masquerade.

Jelly bean dukes and lady sweets all waiting in their proper seats, around the table extraordinary, all hail the Queen – The Sugarplum Fairy!

A vision of beauty, superbly dressed, throughout the land she looks the best. In velvet cloak and satin gown, wearing a lavender amethyst crown.

Radiant angels stand by her side, there to love, protect and guide, with words of sweet serenity, forgiveness, trust, and honesty.

Watch them soar on wings of love, spreading peace from high above. Meditation sets you free on a journey of discovery.

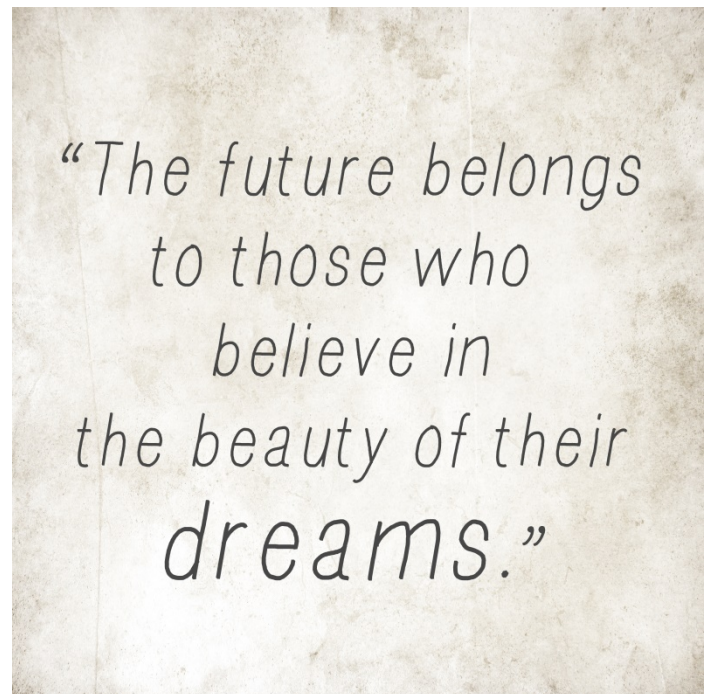

The magic of purple lives inside of you. It can happily help you in all that you do. To make purple your friend, close your eyes and pretend...

Out of the clouds beams a violet ray, lifting you up, up, and away. The planets and stars become your best friends, a feeling of oneness that never ends.

Now you're aboard a flying friend ship, sailing through space on a heavenly trip. All can be real, everything as it seems. Believe as you say, "I am living my dreams!"

Editor's Note: These are the words from one of the six illustrated Magic of Rainbow Color Books that Neysa wrote to uplift children's consciousness and self-esteem. Dedicated to the Rainbow Child in everyone, they are a poetic creative journey through the essence of the chakra colors.

Neysa is presently in the process of producing and distributing them on-line in multiple formats, including audio books.

Today, I Think I'll Bake a Pie and Serve It with a Special Fork

By Jennifer Stanford

I've got a little cabin fever this afternoon. I've grown a little restless, especially in the past couple of days as I've started to feel somewhat better. And since I've had a little relief, the past 48 hours I have painted a little and I have journaled a little. Some of the time I've sat in meditation. But today, I decided I was ready to spend some time in the kitchen, and while I was waiting to take a pie out of the oven, I looked for something to do. Thinking it might be time to clean the silver, I started to pull the silver out when I was reminded of an early morning conversation I had with my grandson Wyatt when his family was here in November.

Wyatt and I were the only two awake, and I was fixing him breakfast. He ordered two eggs scrambled. "Make them soft, and a cup coffee, and that's all MeMaw." I laid one of the silver forks on a napkin by his plate, and as I did, I noticed it was tarnished a little on the tips of the tines. So I reached for the fork and said, "Wyatt, I'm going to trade forks because it's time to polish this. Do you see the ends look a little tarnished?" But Wyatt stopped me, took the fork in his hand and held it close to his face. Looking carefully at the tarnished ends he said, "MeMaw this fork isn't dirty, it's turning gold." This is a 'special fork,' and this is the one I want to eat with." Then he smiled and began to eat his eggs. I smiled back and felt the smile deep in my core, right through to my Soul, for once again my little six-year-old grandson had spoken such beautiful words of wisdom. He saw the beauty in the tarnished fork, and he was proud, proud to eat breakfast with that special fork'.

I tell you this because today I woke up feeling a little bit better, but due to the pain I had to stay inside again, and therefore I felt trapped. I had a little cabin fever. But as I remembered my conversation with Wyatt, I realized how important it is to see the beauty in EVERY situation. It's been challenging over the past several months with the amount of physical pain I've had, and I began to feel trapped. But also, during this time, I've had much time for countless, beautiful, deep, and insightful conversations with my precious momma. We've laughed and I've cried, sometimes late into the night, sometimes early in the morning. There were times that the pain was so big that she would get up with me in the middle of the night, and the conversations would happen then, and they were healing...

So through the pain and the cabin fever I CHOOSE to look back at this challenging time and realize how precious it's been, how precious it's been to be here, to feel the love and the support, to have the conversations, even the times I sat in silence just experiencing the beauty. My tarnished forks can wait. My pain can step aside. I've got so much to be thankful for. There's so much beauty in this life, and the love is immense.

REFLECTIONS TO CONTEMPLATE

Movement is the spirit begging release from the soul.

The quicker the motion, the wider the gap.

Being is the greatest form of beauty.

The rock is...and reflects its beauty.

The forest is...and reflects its beauty.

Man is... and spends his waking hours trying to be something that he is not...

trying to escape from his true nature, separating the spirit from the soul.

Man waits for tomorrow and misses today.

The whole world waits for eternity and misses a lifetime.

Julie Lynn Gliszinski

10/14/1963 - 12/14/2019

Written by her friend Cyndi Felder

With great sadness we say farewell to our dear sister Julie. On November 19th Julie was told that her cancer was extremely aggressive. She was offered one more optional treatment, and after that, there would be nothing else they could do for her. She called and told me the news, and she was totally at peace with her decision. She even joked that she did not feel like she was dying, but then again, she couldn't remember doing it before, so she wasn't sure what it felt like.

Julie was admired in so many ways. Mostly it was because her heart was so beautiful and pure. Cyndi Felder remarked, "I love that the whole time she was ill and in pain, she was still on Facebook praying for others. She was selfless in her ways and staunch in her beliefs". Julie's last message to Cyndi was on December 10th. It was an 'I love you'. On Friday December 13th I had a prayer with Ronnie and then I cried and told him Julie was leaving.

Julie was in hospice at home, and that is where she passed early Saturday morning December 14th. She was surrounded by family. At her bedside were her surviving siblings Cindy, Candy, Mary, Sandy, Paul and Kenny as well as her 3 surviving children Waylon, Trevor and Lillian. Her son Josh passed in July of 2017. There was just one thing she said more than once and that was that she would have liked to stay and watch her granddaughter Baylie grow up. I am not so sure of Baylie's age, but I believe she is under 2 and very cute. Baylie was the love of her life!

Julie dedicated her life to helping people, which was the motivation for becoming and working as a nurse. She was a student of Delphi from April 2018 to October 2018 and completed Level I in the Metaphysician Practitioner program.

The gathering and service was held at the Krause Funeral Home in New Berlin, Wisconsin on Saturday, December 21, 2019.

Sending Love!!

Welcome to the World!

Disconnection is Only a Perception

*Exploring the Energy of the Divine Mother
Knowing Wholeness & The Journey Forward*

By Suzanne Moore, Ph.D

I often say that Delphi handed me the world because it gave me the opportunity to walk the path of my truth. As I walk this path of truth the answers to my lifelong questions literally unfold before me. I realize now that I was searching for the pathway leading out of pain and suffering. As a college student in the late sixties and early seventies, there was an emerging thought within me of creating programs for young preschool children. On a whim I took a course in Child Development and fell in love with classroom teaching and creating environments that would enrich the learning potential for the preschool child. The unfolding of my career path was like painting a canvas with rich and vibrant colors. Each day was always a new day in the classroom. There was no end to the potential for creating experiences of self-discovery for children. As the child in the preschool setting learns to navigate the classroom, both their strengths and weaknesses begin to emerge. There were opportunities for working in large or small group settings and sharing one's thoughts, or being alone and working quietly. It was the teacher's responsibility to connect and reach every child.

We speak of planting seeds of light in the world of energy healing. The healing process being introduced in this article is the story of the birth of light. As my time at Delphi taught me, I was planting seeds of light while teaching. Please understand that I did not conceive that I was planting seeds of light. Rather, I was simply working in the field of my choice which was developmental teaching of children beginning from birth through the preschool years.

I can't begin to count the number of children that I have encountered in my life. There have been so many. The joy of being with children is that they show up unassumingly and literally desire to love and be loved. They love to play, listen and tell stories, laugh, argue, share, or not share. The list is endless. Children present themselves with a vast array of social, emotional, physical, and intellectual attributes. However, the one item that flows through them all, despite their similarities and differences and regardless of the makeup of the child, is their desire for connection. Even when that desire cannot be expressed; when the connection is made, it changes the experience for the child.

In the late seventies and early eighties, we began to experience children who lacked the ability to engage in the social-emotional paradigm. Maybe they had limited verbal skills or maybe they were non-verbal. Perhaps their physical bodies lacked a natural rhythm which made playing, running, and climbing impossible. Sometimes children lacked the ability to focus, which resulted in a short attention span that made participation in the academic world non-existent. Or perhaps they simply had no understanding of their personal bodies in space or maybe they simply could not make eye contact with another. The environments created for these children were designed to create engagement in their world. It was non-negotiable.

Whatever was absent developmentally created the opportunity to bring the missing piece to their environment and teach them one step at a time. About three years ago an opportunity presented itself to me. A young mother came to me who wanted to participate in Ro-Hun. She was delightful and sincere. Her story was very familiar.

I listened and provided guidance for quite a while before beginning Ro-Hun Therapy. After all, her world had been turned upside down, for she had a child experiencing autism. Autism takes a great amount of navigation on the parent's part in deciding the appropriate therapies for their child, plus it often places the parent in a state of isolation. It also creates the potential to place an enormous financial burden on families. I have witnessed countless marriages fail, children being institutionalized, children dying, children and families living marginal lives, the overburdening of social services, and parents shrinking into oblivion due to a group of professionals informing them of each and every deficit their child possesses. It is not a pretty picture.

After being in the field for 36 years, I understood the traditional therapies and I was very familiar with making progress. However, as this particular mother experienced metaphysical and Ro-Hun healings, her child's progress accelerated as well. I listened and observed. She was amazing at navigating and negotiating the appropriate therapies for her child. To this day, I hold her in the highest regard. She shares her experience openly. While participating in the final processes of Ro-Hun Constructs, Vaults, and Tanks, the thought form of autism was revealed. I stepped into the thought form. Present was a duplication of consciousness. I asked and spirit answered. In the duplication there is no light or love. Absent is the rhythm and harmony that creates movement towards the exquisite energies of wisdom and love. It became very apparent to me that there was no way to touch the heart of God in this suspended state of being. I determined this by sending light to the highest level present, and upon waiting for it to be returned, nothing happened. As I was sending pure source light within the duplication of consciousness, spirit shared with me that the resulting impact on the physical body would manifest as the lack of fluid physical movements, decreased eye contact, little to no affect within the facial structure, interrupted speech and language patterns, and the inability to engage in the social-emotional paradigm with others. These are the cornerstones of autism and others that we have labeled as emotional/mental illness.

I do want to pause for a moment and share with you that children, regardless of their makeup, are children first. Whatever their experience in life might be, it is the child experiencing the disability or the disorder or whatever. The fact remains they are children desiring love above all else.

One of the deep desires within my heart was to fully understand how autism and related disabilities are created. What is the relationship between the parents and the child? How can we heal this suspended, disconnected state of being? What are the causes? The pain and suffering of the families made a profound impression on my life. I have searched a lifetime for understanding.

It was not until I stepped foot on the property of Delphi University in June of 2011 that I began to fully understand that it was my spiritual/divine connection, my sensitive nature, and my intuitive abilities that was the absolute foundation of my career. It is the divine nature that continues to reveal answers to my many questions and forward movement.

Upon graduation from Delphi in October of 2015 Kimberly Curcio gave the graduates the task of defining 'Obedience'. I remember the challenge of her words. Before I realized it, a pathway of expansion presented itself to me. It was my choice to answer or not to answer. The realization that I created through my choices rang loud and clear. I was all about choices in my teaching career. So, yes, I diligently defined Obedience:

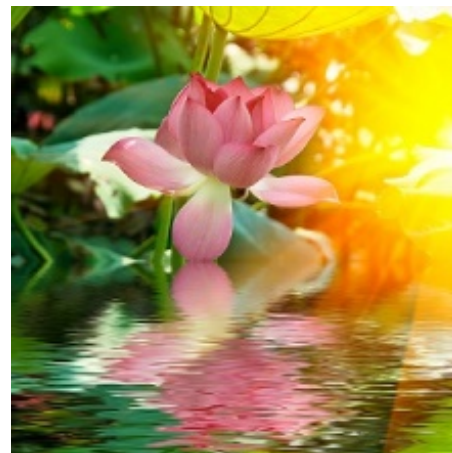

As we peer into the world today, we must ask ourselves two questions. First, are we looking from the outside in or the inside out? When an individual continues to look from the outside in, the many flaws of faulty thoughts and feelings emerge. There is judgment and condemnation. There is pain and sorrow. There is literally no peace or love in the outside world, so how can you bring forward the love and nurturing of the human soul when viewed from this perspective? It is only when we are able to move deep within that the opportunity of Obedience emerges. Obedience calls for the soul to surrender so it may discover its true nature: A nature of pure love and acceptance, of all knowing. Obedience calls for one thing from the human being, to listen. When we are listening, we hear our divine self. There is no greater gift than to know one's divine self and to walk the pathway provided by it. This is the true gift of Obedience. Kimberly offered me the opportunity to reflect upon my work looking through the eyes of God. Her request created a profound shift and the concept has grown into a cornerstone of my very foundation. It has provided expansion, reflection, understanding, compassion, acceptance, knowledge, wisdom, and the experience of pure love. It serves the light, the connection we most deeply desire.

My passion of teaching young children created an unexpected journey early on in my career. It was a journey that included children who had lost the ability to communicate, regardless of whether the cause is physical, emotional, intellectual or social. Many times there was a lack of or limited abilities to verbally express themselves, or perhaps their physical bodies were so impaired that they simply could not move through the physical world. Again, the list is infinite.

As the preschool developmental educator, my sole role in their lives was to connect with the child. When the soul connection occurred, their world opened and my world did as well. I innately knew how to create experiences for them to experience life in the physical with kindness and love. What could possibly be better? I began to reflect on 'connection' just as I had on obedience, and another beautiful unique journey appeared unexpectedly. I asked myself, what is the definition of connection when viewed from within?

Removing the perception of outside-in, and stepping into the wholeness of my being shifted my understanding. It is in the disconnected state that I worked tirelessly with children and families. The pain and suffering of the children and their families was at times unbearable. I witnessed the pain, the suffering, the broken hearts. I also witnessed moments of fleeting joy, resolution, compassion, and acceptance, only to watch them dissolve before my eyes. But most of all, I witnessed the broken hearts and the devastation. To this day that feeling brings tears to my eyes.

Being in a state of 'dis-connection' is a loss. It is a loss that is pervasive, a loss that is unique to each and every individual. It is like a deep whole that is a bottomless pit. Dis-connection creates the inability to grasp the divine nature at hand and live in the heart. It creates chaos, disassociation, guilt, shame, hopelessness, frustration and confusion. In the end, there is the creation of a pattern of pain and suffering.

As my awareness grew, I began to dream once again. I dreamt of potentials for healing the dis-connected state. I must admit that the dream seemed unreachable until I consulted with Judy Potter and she quite directly told me I was not asking the right questions. As a Ro-Hun doctor, I went straight to Dr. Ro-Hun and asked this question, "Can we do something to heal the dis-connect before it manifests in the physical"? When I look back on my request I have to laugh at myself because I mapped out for him what the pain and suffering looked like. I even showed him the cost of raising a child experiencing dis-connection. I shared with him the emotional discomfort and the devastation of families.

Before I could blink my eyes, Marshall Smith had joined with Dr. Ro-Hun and I began to channel a process that was directed towards healing the dis-connect. Beyond my wildest dreams, the Divine Mother showed up and begin teaching me the pathway of connection, the connection to source and the opportunity to heal that dis-connected pattern of pain and suffering. She identified the loss unique to the individual. Was it a loss due to miscarriage, abortion, stillbirth, death of a child, delay in caring directly for the child because of premature birth, or perhaps the state of being separated from the child for whatever reason, or a child experiencing a disability? Present in all of these experiences is the child in the dis-connected state and a parent in deep grief due to loss.

The Divine Mother created an opportunity for the child to speak directly to the parent. To this day, it continues to unfold. As I am guided to teach others the Healings of the Divine Mother, each therapist will have their own unique experience with their clients.

Consciousness Creates Quantum Physics and Our Reality

A workshop with Elizabeth Hood & Kimberly Curcio

Experiments in quantum physics now support what the ancients knew millennia ago.... We create our reality. In this new and exciting course, we reveal just how mighty we are as creators. We explore ancient writing and philosophies that describe this fundamental law of the Universe, and we examine how modern-day quantum physics theories support this amazing and powerful truth... Consciousness Creates!

In addition to reviewing the wisdom and science behind our role as the creators of our reality, we will look at the reality we have created and begin to build a new vision for the areas in our life we are ready to change. We will also learn techniques to bring this new awareness into our daily lives. You are creating your reality whether you know it or not. Come explore how to consciously create your reality.

Please join Elizabeth and Kimberly for this cutting-edge workshop and learn how to recreate your reality.

New Book

The Definitive Book on the Afterlife

By Patricia Hayes

"This extraordinary book includes a broad spectrum of information that is focused into an easy-to-understand single best source on the Afterlife."

Patricia Hayes and Marshall Smith are uniquely qualified as the definitive source of information on the Afterlife. Married for thirty-three years, Patricia and Marshall have experienced a diversity of life that has given them a deep understanding of world cultures and views of life – Marshall with his decades of experience in corporate management positions, and Patricia with her decades of experience in psychology and spiritual studies.

Together, they have been dedicated to bringing a greater awareness of ancient wisdom and universal truths to a broad spectrum of people in inspired, creative ways. For several decades, they practiced a method called Open Communication which enabled them to acquire detailed knowledge of the Afterlife and to access higher resources concerning the evolution of mankind.

Their accomplishments, individually and together, include:

- Establishment of Delphi University of Spiritual Studies in the mountains of north Georgia, which offers degree programs and, today, is attended by students worldwide.
- Expansion of Delphi University's curriculum to include hands-on energy healing, transpersonal psychotherapy, intuitive art therapy, spiritual anatomy, and the development of the intuitive senses.
- Development of the process called Open Communication, a means of communicating with those who have crossed over and those who exist in other realms of consciousness.
- Authoring or co-authoring nine books on a variety of topics including Ro-Hun transpersonal psychotherapy and several spiritual topics.
- Renown for psychic investigation and the subject of study by the late Dr. William Roll with the Parapsychology Department of Duke University.
- Renown trans-channeler of Arthur Ford, the well-known psychic medium, acknowledged by Beatrice Houdini for breaking the Houdini Code.
- Quotations, referenced sources, and contributions to a dozen books by other authors on a variety of alternative healing and spiritual topics.

In addition, Marshall Smith is the creator of Spiritual Anatomy I and II courses and author of two books of the same name.

"Death cannot separate us."

Unlike all other books on this topic, The Definitive Book on the Afterlife introduces an astonishing new way of looking at the Afterlife. It is very different and profound – a true documentary that shares in-depth information and detailed experiences of dying, death, transition, and existence in the Afterlife – actual experiences!"

In the very early stages of writing The Definitive Book on the Afterlife, Marshall Smith unexpectedly passed away through a tragic accident. However, he continued to contribute to the book by sharing his personal experiences of dying, death, and the Afterlife. Patricia Hayes, highly experienced in communicating with those in the Afterlife, and having shared this process with Marshall for three decades, documented over a hundred communications with Marshall who, now in the Afterlife, provided detailed information that greatly influenced the content and direction of this book.

The information about the Afterlife conveyed in this book comes from Patricia Hayes' decades of first-hand experience with helping others to cross over, and with her frequent communication not only with her husband, but also with her brother, Fred. She shares intimate details of Marshall's dying, including his moment of death, transition, and acclimation to the Afterlife – intimate details that are made possible through their deep love and dedication to their personal and working relationship. Using Marshall's observations and understanding of his existence in the Afterlife, Patricia draws comparisons between the physical levels of consciousness and the levels of consciousness in the Afterlife, so that you will know what to expect and how to function.

Practical and easy-to-understand, you discover what the transition process is like, how the Earth and Afterlife are intertwined, how to determine your place in the Afterlife, and, most important, how to communicate with your loved ones who are in the Afterlife while you are still here on Earth.

The Definitive Book on the Afterlife transcends religious views of dying to share first-hand, direct experience with the process of dying and death, as well as the realities of being in the Afterlife. One thing is for sure -- you will never look at dying and death the same way again. Inspirational, transformative, comforting, reassuring – it is a must read!

Preorder "The Definitive Book on the Afterlife" between January 12th and January 20th and you will receive an autographed copy from Patricia.

AQUANEW Watt-Ahh

AquaNew's Watt-Ahh® is the bold side of water. The crystalline-like structure of Watt-Ahh® contains a reservoir of electrons to defend against oxidative stress, premature aging and inflammation.

Watt-Ahh® is refreshing, great tasting water. There are no sugars, caffeine or other additives. Watt-Ahh® is pure water – the way Nature intended Watt-Ahh® has no comparison in the functional beverage world. AquaNew has discovered a new water purification process which allows our bodies to more readily absorb water into cells, resulting in complete hydration, detoxification, cellular communication, and support of the mitochondria (which maintain our own healing and immune systems).

Mitochondria are the powerhouses within our cells that generate true natural energy.

The mind can be tricked into feeling less fatigue for a short time when someone consumes a beverage with a high amount of caffeine that crosses the blood brain barrier.

What we mean by "natural energy" is that Watt-Ahh® supports the mighty mitochondria within the cells for true innate energy. It re-energizes without the side effects of caffeine and sugar withdrawals

"Discover Watt-Ahh! Best Water in the World!"

Entura Spiritual Artist Association

Each of our Entura Art professionals is a spiritual healer skilled in using intuitive art across a variety of Complementary, Alternative, and Energy Healing Therapies:

- A Certified Entura Artist is a trained intuitive artist who has demonstrated expertise in the channeling and interpretation of Entura Art Soul Portraits and Life Readings.
- An Entura Art Therapist is a skilled Certified Entura Artist who, having received a B.A. in Transpersonal and Psychospiritual Arts, is trained as a Bachelor Level Entura Art and Sound therapist and who has demonstrated a deeper expertise in the intuitive channeling and interpretation of Soul Portraits and Life Readings.
- An Entura Art Spiritual Healer is a skilled Entura Art Therapist who, having received an M.A. in Transpersonal Healing Art Therapies, is an intuitive artist, therapist, and spiritual healer, trained as a Master Level of Entura Art and Sound therapist and who has demonstrated an expertise in incorporating Entura Art into a variety of metaphysical healing modalities such as energy healing, distance healing, past life regressions and readings, and medical intuitive readings.
